

Sanna Marin, Finland's new Prime Minister since early December has called for the introduction of a flexible working schedule in the country that would foresee a 4-day-week and 6-hours working day.

Marin, 34, has drawn international attention, being the youngest female head of government worldwide who leads a 5-parties centre-left coalition, entirely headed by women.

Her coalition has demanded a test run for the new working schedule, on the occasion of the 120th anniversary of the Social Democratic Party (SDP) in Turku.

"I believe people deserve to spend more time with their families, loved ones, hobbies and other aspects of life, such as culture. This could be the next step for us in working life," said Marin...
